My aunt showed perseverance by the way she handled cancer, but don't be sad she was a bright woman. When the Ravens won the super bowl she had a blast. At her son's wedding she had tears of joy. She would always enjoy life by seeing her family. My aunt would never let anything bring her down. She loved her family. I remember how she would always called me baby girl, because I think she could not pronounce my name. But she finally knew how to pronounce it. She would never let anything happen between her and her family, and that is how my aunt showed perseverance.

Nahndi, this is beautiful.
